

Introduction module 4

In module 4 the students first learn to recognize and name their own desires and to understand that people can have different desires. This is one of the first steps of the Theory of Mind-development. Building on this, the students learn that the fulfilment or non-fulfilment of wishes can trigger feelings and reactions of people.

- The teacher can decide whether to start with exercise 4.1 or 4.2.
- The exercises 4.4 and 4.5 are linked to the same story so they should be completed one after another.
- The students should have achieved the learning objectives of module 4 before the teacher starts Module 5.

Goal

The students know that people's emotional reactions depend on their desires and understand that two people may feel a different emotion about the same situation because they have different desires.

Checklist for download

To assess your students' abilities, you can use the following checklist/learning objective table.

Learning steps

The students are able to	beginners	advanced express their own desires and understand that people have different desires.	4.1 4.2	4.3
understand that desires can cause emotions and that two people may feel a different emotion about the same situation because they have different desires.	4.4	4.6
understand that people's desires can guide their actions.	4.5	